Quest: Multidisciplinary Journal of Humanities & Social Sciences is an online initiative of Sarojini Naidu College for Women, which attempts to examine the interaction between academics and society. This open access, interdisciplinary Journal endeavours to publish original empirical and theoretical studies and analyses in different fields of Humanities and Social Sciences. Its mission is to serve as a platform for all academicians, scholars and students engaged in advancing the cause of higher education.

This online Journal aims to focus on significant political, cultural, literary, social, and economic issues and organizational trends in education, along with the teaching, learning, and human development challenges, and opportunities. It aims to strive for innovation and excellence.

The editorial team, under the patronage and guidance of the principal of the College and esteemed members of the College Governing Body, feels privileged to publish the first issue of Quest: Multidisciplinary Journal of Humanities & Social Sciences. We take this opportunity to thank all the authors whose contributions have enabled us to publish this issue. We look forward to all the academicians, scholars and young students for their contributions, suggestions and feedbacks, which would enable us to reach greater heights.
