

From the Editors' Desk:

We would like to apologise for the delays in the publishing process in recent times. This time we are going to publish Issue No. 3 and 4 of Beats, Vol. 3, combined together; as we failed to publish the received papers of one issue in time, due to certain technical problems. In this combined issue, six articles are appearing distributed in four different categories; two research reports, two review articles, one in innovative idea of research and teaching methodology and rest belongs to the interface — science, environment and society. We hope this issue will attract attention from our readers as the earlier issues did.

We once again express our sincere apology to the authors contributing in this issue as they waited for long after submission of their articles in the final form. We also hope to recover soon from the crisis we face particularly in recent times in the publishing process due to scarcity of technical hands, as well as due to unavailability of sufficient number of quality articles. Our confidence rests on the group of academicians already associated with this journal, in the form of readers, contributors, helping hands in editing process and advisors.
