Cracking Competitive Examinations with Insights into Medieval Indian History

Organised by
The Department of History
Sarojini Naidu College for Women

Medieval Indian History refers to the period in Indian history roughly between the 8th century CE and the 18th century CE, marking the transition from ancient to modern India. This era is characterized by the rise and fall of several regional and pan - Indian kingdoms, the spread of Islam in the sub-continent and significant cultural, architectural and religious developments. This period shaped India's social, cultural and religious fabric; saw the rise of important cities, trade networks and art forms and set the stage for colonial influence and the modern period.
